

POINTS TO PONDER

- The ability to see something with your heart, not just with your eyes, comes from your imagination, and it isn't just for children.
- A picture is worth a thousand words. If you can't picture something on the inside, or if you can't see yourself healed, then you won't be.
- If you constantly see yourself well, then that is going to reproduce itself in your experience, and you will see that healing manifest.
- If you are operating in hope, then you are looking at something that isn't present or real at this exact moment. You're looking into the future and you're seeing what can be instead of what is. This is vital when it comes to healing.
- Many people are just throwing a prayer out toward God in desperation, and if the symptoms leave, hallelujah. But they don't have any ability to see something with their hearts. They only go by what the doctor says and what their bodies feel. However, you can get to where what you see with your heart is more real to you than what you see or feel in your physical body.
- Faith gives substance, tangibility, and reality to things hoped for. What if you don't hope for anything? What if there isn't any hope? Well, then, faith has nothing to make manifest. Faith doesn't have anything to accomplish.
- Hope is what controls your faith, so before you can really believe for something, you've got to hope for it.
- You've got to develop hope, and once you turn that hope on, like a thermostat, the power unit of faith starts kicking in.
- It's good to read the Word of God, but most people don't meditate until those words paint a picture.
- One of the hardest things you'll ever do is get to where you aren't walking by sight (by what the doctor says, what your body tells you, and what other people have to say) but by faith. This is where you take the Word, the incorruptible seed of God's Word, and you meditate on it day and night. If you keep doing that, it will paint a picture on the inside of you.

- You need to have a vision for healing. You need to imagine yourself healed. Meditate on the scriptures until you can see yourself healed, and once you see it on the inside, it's just a matter of time until you see it on the outside.
- Meditate on the scriptures concerning healing, and see yourself well. Get to where you dream it, think about it, and it becomes your identity—not what you see with your eyes or feel in your body, but what you see with your heart. When you can see it on the inside, then you'll see it manifest on the outside.
